From the left are Kurt Hanson; Bert Demers, general contractor for the building; Howard Ganske; Mr. Mayhew and Dennis Manning. The formal opening took place last Friday.

Teachers' Strike Appears Possible

There is a possibility that the schools in eight school systems in North-Central Alberta may not open this fall.

The 820 teachers employed by the School Boards of Parkland County, Barrhead County, Lac Ste. Anne County, Westlock School Division, Drayton Valley RC School District, Grande Cache School District, Jasper School District and Thibault CP School District have voted 90% in favour of strike. The Alberta Teachers' Association, which is the official bargaining agent for the teachers, may now withdraw the services of the teachers before or during the forth-coming school term by giving each School Board at least two working days notice.

The School Boards which are represented in bargaining by the North-Central Alberta School Authorities Association unanimously rejected a Conciliation Commissioner Recommendation which was handed down in late April. The major objections of the School Boards were on the recommendations concerning monetary issues and teacher working conditions. The teachers accepted the Conciliation Commissioners Recommendation by a large majority.

Subsequent to the rejection of the Conciliation Commissioner's Recommendation, the representatives of the School Boards met with the teachers, in the presence of a government mediator to express their concern on those matters which they found objectionable.

They indicated that they were prepared to continue discussions and to negotiate on several of the issues remaining in the dispute. The A.T.A. representatives took a most rigid position by stating they were not prepared nor did they have the authority to recommend anything different from the Conciliation Commissioner's Recommendation to the teachers.

With this attitude, the School Board representatives found it impossible to have any meaningful discussions with the teachers bargaining team. School Boards are of the view that the teachers are threatening strike action as a tactic to achieve their own personal goals with little regard for the educational needs of the students.

The School Boards representatives also feel that so long as the A.T.A. continues in its rigid attitude of unwillingness to move to a position other than those specified in the Conciliation Commissioner's Recommendation, further discussions would be fruitless. They, however, have indicated a willingness for further talks whenever the teachers indicate a willingness to carry on serious negotiations.

The School Boards in rejecting the Conciliation Commissioner's Recommendation have taken a position which they are prepared to justify to their local communities.

Any interested rate-payer may obtain a copy of the position (including the relevent costs involved) that is acceptable to the School Boards simply by requesting it from the School Board office of the jurisdiction in which he resides.

Rain Fails to Stop Buck Lake Stampede

A mid-afternoon rain and hail storm on Wednesday, July 7th turned the Buck Lake Stampede infield into a sea of mud. Rodeo events were delayed for about an hour and then the program continued to a successful conclusion.

The day's program started with a big parade in the morning that was also hit by rain but also went on to completion.

Miss Peggy Ann Wasyk of Buck Lake was this year's Stampede Queen. Runners-up were Connie Jones of Winfield and Sandra Morton of Alder Flats.

The day's activities ended with a dance in the evening.

All rodeo events were F.C.A. approved and stock supplied by Joe Bardgett of Cremona.

Event winners were as follows:

Maclures Win Canoe Race

CALGARY-- Edmonton brothers Paul and David Maclure showed 19 other canoeists how to paddle and portage on the weekend of July 10 and 11 as they cleaned up in the Banff-to-Calgary canoe race.

They are the sons of Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Maclure, formerly of Drayton Valley, and now serving as medical missionaries in Africa.

They took their 18-foot vessel down the 100-mile course in 11 hours and 21 minutes to beat Bill Morris and Ron Parent of Calgary.

There were two major portages, the first was one-quarter mile long at Seebe, Alta., near the eastern edge of Banff National Park, and another was less than two miles further downstream.

THE SHAKING MINARETS

Regarded by many Canadian visitors to India as among the most fascinating monuments in this timeless country are the Shaking Minarets of Ahmedabad. Located in Gujarat Province in western India, these two delicately carved towers vie with the Whispering Gallery of St. Paul's Cathedral and the Leaning Tower of Pisa in the uniqueness of their engineering. With the Shaking Minarets, the interest lies in the equilibrium of the towers: just a touch of the finger on the first tower causes it to sway and in turn, via the conduction of vibrations through a stone connecting bridge, starts the second tower swaying. This engineering marvel was designed and constructed in the 15th century by master craftsmen working with only very primitive tools and their knowledge of ancient mathematics. The Minarets remain today as perfect and as fascinating as they were intended to be five centuries ago.

Reeve's Report

The month of June was a disasterous one for our public works program. Continuous rains virtually stopped our Construction and Oiling Programs. However, with a break at all in the weather, we still hope to complete all the projects planned, even if it means contracting some jobs.

Lagoons seemed to be the big issue this month, with both Stony Plain and Spruce Grove attempting to establish lagoons in the County. There has been much opposition from the areas concerned, but attempts are now being made to alleviate the genuine concerns of our ratepayers, so these lagoons will cause as little damage and inconvenience as possible. A committee of our Council, the towns concerned and the ratepayers has been set up in each area to work out an agreement that will protect the adjacent land owners.

Another new proposal Council is anticipating, because of many requests, is prohibiting the discharge of firearms in designated areas. As a test area we propose to pass a by-law covering the area:-

1. That portion of Township Fifty-Three(53), Range One (1), West of the Fifth Meridian lying North of Highway No. 16.
2. That portion of Township Fifty-Three (53), Range Two (2), West of the Fifth Meridian lying North of Highway No. 16 and East of Highway No. 43.

This by-law will prohibit the discharge of firearms in the area except by the owner of land on his own property or on private property with written consent of the owner. Your comments on this procedure would be much appreciated.

The dog problem continues to plague us especially in hamlets and sub-divisions. We are studying possible dog by-laws but as yet have not finalized anything, as we see so many inherent problems connected with such a by-law.

I am sorry to report also that this month Councillor Lent underwent surgery to which he has not responded very well and will be incapacitated for a considerable period of time. We all wish him a speedy recovery and a return to council work.

Tax notices have now all been mailed. I would remind you that the penalty date is October 1, at which time a 4% penalty is added.

Our school population continues to grow and at June 1 stood at 5,259 students. Architects have been appointed for the Spruce Grove and Winterburn school additions. Don Pinckston is doing Winterburn and Stan Hodgson Spruce Grove. Plans are being finalized and will be out to tender shortly.

A joint use agreement has been signed with the Town of Drayton Valley for the new high school in that centre. This is the second for the County. The Spruce Grove one is working out well and we feel sure this will also be a mutually beneficial arrangement.

It appears we may face the possibility of a teacher strike this fall. However our negotiators are anxious to continue negotiations with the teachers and hopefully more rational heads will prevail and an agreement will be negotiated without strike action. An insert covering this more fully appears elsewhere in this paper.

I am pleased with the favorable comments received on this monthly report and hope it is serving the purpose for which it was intended.

TOMAHAWK TEAM WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

The Tomahawk Ladies Fastball team won the Western Division Championship by defeating the Drayton Valley Angels in a 2 out of 3 game series.

The team then went to Spruce Grove to play the eastern champions who had defeated Stony Plain.

The first game saw Tomahawk defeat Spruce Grove by a score of 5 to 6 . The second and third games were to be a double-header in Tomahawk on Sunday, but due to the rain, the games could not be played.

On Tuesday July 13th, the Tomahawk diamond was still too wet so the team met Spruce Grove at Seba Beach, where Tomahawk won by a score of 6 to 3 to take the County of Parkland Trophy.

The team would like to thank the coaches and husbands who had to go without meals when the ladies went to play their ball games. It was a good season and the ladies enjoyed it.

LEGISLATIVE REPORT

By Kevin Peterson and Don Sellar (Of the Calgary Herald)

Premier Harry Strom is entering the provincial election campaign in a cautiously-optimistic frame of mind, but he's not cocky.

After all, five of the last seven provincial governments to face their electorates during the past two years have been unceremoniously shovelled out of office.

But the 56-year-old Social Credit premier of Alberta must be pleased with the performance of the province's economy this year, an important factor in any election battle.

In March, Alberta had chalked up its highest unemployment rate in five years when 6.6 percent of the labor force was out of work.

But three consecutive months of improvement in the job picture have altered the situation considerable, bringing smiles to the faces of provincial cabinet ministers.

Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures showed only 3.7 percent of the labor force looking for jobs in June, a drop of .9 percent from the previous month.

The upswing in jobs across the province stands out in sharp contrast to the situation nationally. DBS figures for June revealed a 6.4 percent unemployment rate, up from 6.3 percent in May.

Premier Strom's caution--a hallmark of his 30 months in the province's top political office-- is evidenced by other factors prevalent in the Social Credit party as it prepares to seek its 10th consecutive election mandate.

For example, Socred organizers are not hiding the fact that former Premier E.C. Manning has been invited to do some stumping on behalf of the government he led for more than a quarter of a century.

While Mr. Strom has proved he isn't Senator Manning's puppet during his tenure of office, he's not about to ignore the valuable help available from his predecessor on the campaign trail.

The venerable Senator Manning, then, is almost certain to spend some time telling Albertans--particularly those in rural Alberta --about the merits of their Socred administration.

As the election approaches, it becomes evident that Premier Strom is trying to bridge the ideological and age gaps in the Albertan population in an effort to keep Social Credit the mainstream party.

He attracted Liberals to the Socred cause and younger people have surfaced at party gatherings recently. The question remains to be answered whether Mr. Strom can keep his more conservative and his longtime party members happy -- and voting Socred.

If he can, he will have earned his premier's spurs and successfully fought electoral trends which have ousted so many other members of the premiers' club across Canada in recent years.

Editorial Comment

U.S. and China

President Nixon's announcement that he will visit China, besides astounding the world, should also mark the beginning of a new era in world diplomacy.

The west could not continue the line of the past twenty-five years, ignoring mainland China's 750 million in favor of a small ousted regime in exile. Canada's support for a softened attitude toward Red China probably helped the U.S. president in his monumental decision.

Hopefully, President Nixon will also soon make a visit to Russia to reassure the Soviets that recognition of China is not intended to interfere with improved relations between East and West in recent years. It would be most unfortunate if the president's attempt at improving the world situation brought China out of world isolation only to have the Russians duck back behind the iron curtain.

Protests

The Kings County Record was approached last week with a suggestion we might have a photographer take pictures of a protest march.

Our answer was no.

The Kings County Record is happy at all times to co-operate with persons, or groups, who have constructive ideas.

Insofar as those who wish to complain, and have no constructive suggestions about how things may be improved, they are wasting their time trying to get The Record involved.

Protestors who have nothing more to offer than protests have every right to do their own thing. They also must accept responsibility for the impression they make on the public in doing their own thing.

The Record does its own thing. We stand up, and are counted, on what we do and say. Even if a group of protesters carried placards saying "Read only The Kings County Record"' we would not publish a picture.

Protests are good; but they must be accompanied by some suggestions which might lead to something better.

Very definitely we are interested in such a program.

No building ever was built simply by tearing down one which stood there before.

No improvement in our way of life ever was built simply by destroying what was there before

If improvements are wanted, say how things can be improved.

We're with you 100 per cent under those circumstances, but we're with you zero per cent when protest comes ahead of suggested solutions.

HART CANTELON

Readers wishing to write to Mr. Cantelon are invited to do so. All letters to be forwarded to Hart Cantelon Counselling Services Ltd., 1600 Cambridge Building, Edmonton. Please include a stamped self-addressed envelope to ensure a reply.

Dear Mr. Cantelon:
I want to be married in July. However, when I asked my boss for the day off, he refused. He said that I had a contract which was good for two years. This contract was not signed by any lawye It was only signed by myself and my boss. Could she force me to go back to her, if I left? What would happen, if I took the day off anyway? Is there anything she can do in the way of suing me?

Dear Bride-To-Be:
I don't think any such agreemen could deter you from your marriage plans. Your boss may be able to force you to continue to work in her employ for a certain length of time, but I am sure tha the contract can be discontinued if due notice is given. Take this matter up with the Labor Relations Board of the Provincial Government in which you live. Or a lawyer can help you in coming to the proper legal decision. Onc you have done this, then make your plans for marriage.

Dear Mr. Cantelon:
I am writing you regarding my husband. He wants to argue and fight with me all the time. There are days when he won't talk with me or sleep with me. What is more he does not support me or my boy of 13 years. When he doe talk to the boy, he turns him fror me. In conversation, he uses dirty talk all the time. What do I do?

Dear Discouraged Wife:
Ideally, your husband should get counselling. But my guess is that he would never submit to this kind of communication. This means, you must start at the next best move, namely, to talk with someone yourself. If you are Catholic begin with your priest. Should your religious background be Protestant, then turn to the pastor of any church in your community. You may feel embarrassed by sharing your problem with a clergyman, but remember, he is there to help not to judge. Your boy must be in Junior High School, at his age. This opens up another door, if there is a school counsellor at your son's school. Go to him or her, as the case may be, and ask that person for help. If you are within travel distance of a major city-center, you will find a counselling agency in ever the smallest which is ready and willing to help. But just don't put up with this kind of a problem any longer. Your husband is either on the verge of serious mental illness, or he needs some kind of jolt to make him willing to seek help. You can do this by getting the help you need yourself.

Dear Mr. Cantelon:
I am greatly distrubed by our relationship with our clergyman. When we approach him over an important church problem, where he is asked to give an opinion, he just seems to clam-up, or either gives a flippant answer. Surely this is not the kind of reaction that ought to come from one who is supposed to give leadership to the community. It seems to me that he shirks his responsibility in trying to live out Christ's example amongst us. Would it be asking too much to ask you your opinion about this attitude?

Dear Concerned Church Member:
In order to deal with this situation, I need to know a great deal more about the problem that you have indicated in your letter. I might say, however, that many of our Ministers of to-day do feel reticent about giving answers to specific problems. They feel that it is better for church members to muddle through and find out their own answers, rather than de pending on him. Of course, to lean over entirely in this directio means that little or no leadership is really given. Most certainly, Jesus was not the kind of person who pushed people around, but when an issue arose, He gave an opinion and explained why He took this position. A Minister of the Church, who is supposed to be Christ's disciple can do no less If a Clergyman does not know the direction his leadership should take, there is help available at every hand to make it possible for him and his congregation to work things through to a decision that reflects the faith, he and his people profess.

Considerable Hail Activity Reported in Early July

The extremely wet weather of early July brought with it considerable hail activity. In fact, hail was reported from somewhere within the Alberta Hail Studies Project area on ten out of the first days of the month. However, most of the hail was small and only in a few localized areas was the hail large enough to cause severe damage. Although the air has been very unstable, with the cool temperatures storm tops have barely reached 30,000 feet; and so the severe well-organized travelling storm systems that normally produce widespread damage have not been in evidence yet.

The largest hail reported so far this year fell on the evening of 1st of July as two storms moved from north of Drayton Valley to Edmonton. Stones up to 3 inches in diameter were reported but in many instances were quite soft and shattered on impact.

Last week gave several opportunities for the Alberta Hail Studies Project to try out the experimental cloud seeding system using the T-33 jet aircraft. A total of five experiments were carried out on three days. On 6th of July a storm which moved slowly south east over Gull Lake and dumped several inches of grape sized hail in the Lacombe area was seeded with 82 silver iodide flares just northeast of Red Deer.

On 9th of July a storm moving out from the foothills northwest of Cochrane was seeded with 55 flares between 3:30 and 4:30 p.m. All of the Hail Studies sampling trucks were able to collect the precipitation coming out of the storm in the Cremona area. The aircraft then landed at Calgary Airport to refuel and reload with flares. The aircraft then investigated a storm west of Innisfail, but the storm appeared to be dying out. Meanwhile another storm which had been brewing near Rocky Mountain House was producing walnut and golfball size hail several inches deep on the ground in places. Two seeding runs were made at 7:30 p.m. dropping 41 flares into the developing part of the storm. The trucks were again able to sample the rain and hail from this storm before and after seeding, having travelled about 120 miles from the location of the earlier experiment. All told, a total of 72 samples were collected on this day for laboratory analysis.

On Sunday, 11th of July, several small but quite intense storms tracked rapidly east across the southern half of the project area. The most persistent of these storms was seeded at 4:00 p.m. west of Trochu. After the aircraft landed at Calgary, a second storm was seeded northeast of Bassano at 6:30 p.m. At this range it was still possible to track the aircraft, although it was very difficult to see the storm on the weather radar. After two seeding runs the T-33 returned to base at Namao.

The operational logistics of using the T-33 for seeding are working out very well. Now that the aircraft has a transponder on board, it is possible to follow it at all times and direct it precisely to the storm of interest. This is particularly useful in situations with storms embedded in a general overcast as occurred on two occasions last week.

It is interesting to note that none of the seeded storms continued with their vigorous development after seeding. In most cases the aircraft could only make two seeding passes, after which no more turrets suitable for further seeding grew on the storm. Complete evaluation of these experiments will have to await a detailed analysis next winter of all the data collected. Telephone surveys were conducted in the area of each experiment, and together with the mailed-in information, a total of over 700 hail reports have been obtained.

financial assistance to industry: why?

Two reasons: to create job opportunities and to balance our economy.
In the past, we have depended heavily on agriculture, oil and natural gas to create Alberta's income.
Today through financial assistance to secondary industry, we will help create a different kind of industrial growth. This will mean that our "financial eggs" will not all be in one basket.

the alberta commercial corporation.
Alberta was the first province to set up a corporation of this kind. Basically, ACC makes low interest loans available to eligible manufacturing concerns wishing to expand or locate throughout the province.

the incentives fund.
Alberta's smaller towns and cities will benefit by the creation of new industry within their borders. That's why a special Incentives Fund has been created to assist municipalities of under 50,000 people.
Loans are made to existing industrial concerns that want to expand, diversify or modernize present facilities. Or to new industry wishing to establish in these centers.
Incentive loans cannot exceed ⅓ of the approved capital costs or up to $500,000. And, these are forgiveable loans.

loans to tourist facilities.
This program is designed to accelerate the growth of the tourist industry in Alberta. This is a continuing program offering individual loans as high as $500,000.

Testing Reveals More Fish With High Mercury Levels

As a result of concern for mercury levels in Alberta pheasants two years ago and also as a result of the worldwide concern regarding the presence of mercury in foods, attention was focused on mercury levels in Canadian fish. The Federal Government established a testing program to determine mercury levels in commercially caught fish being marketed for human consumption. The province of Alberta began a sampling program to provide further information on mercury levels in various species of game fish. This sampling program is being continued and certain pertinent information on the mercury levels in fish has become available.

In 1970 the Department of Lands and Forests notified Alberta residents that goldeye, walleye, sauger and pike in the North Saskatchewan River contained mercury levels in the flesh which were above the tolerance limit of 0.5 parts per million. Citizens were advised not to use these species from the North Saskatchewan River, for food.

The Department of Lands and Forests has determined further that goldeye, walleye (pickerel) and pike in the South Saskatchewan River, the Red Deer River, and that walleye (pickerel) in Moose Lake near Bonnyville, and 20% of walleyes in Lac La Nonne contain mercury levels above the tolerance limit.

Testing on these and other waters in the province is being continued and further information relative to the mercury problem will be released as results become available. The Department wishes to advise that the specific reasons for mercury levels being above the tolerance limit of 0.5 parts per million has not yet been determined.

Notice is hereby given that the species of fish from the waters mentioned above are not considered suitable for eating.

NEWS NOTES FROM THE D.A.

Phone Stony Plain 777-2231 between 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.

In Drayton Valley each Wednesday at Sekura Auction Mart from 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.

"I have no intention of farming" is the common answer to the suggestion that a young person consider attending the College of Agriculture. This response reflects the general lack of knowledge of the career opportunities for those graduating from the College of Agriculture. High school students and their parents generally assume that farming is the goal of those who graduate from the College of Agriculture. The truth of the matter is that less than 20 percent of those who graduate with the B.S.A. degree return to farming. Over 80 percent secure employment associated with agriculture in one form or another.

Roughly about 20 percent of the graduates secure employment in each of the areas of research inspection and grading and sales promotion. Around 15 percent find employment in extension activities, about 5 percent proceed to teaching positions and about the same percentage to a variety of jobs, including administration of farm credit. Some elaboration on these broad areas of employment may be helpful.

Graduates desiring a career in research almost invariable must undertake postgraduate training leading to a Master's or Doctor's degree. In doing so, almost invariable they are supported on a scholarship or fellowship valued at $3,000 or better annually. A high proportion ultimatly find employment with the Canada Department of Agriculture or a University. A few postgraduate students are employed on research programs by agri-business firms. For the person interested in research the range of possibilities is almost unlimited. The soil, living organisms (microscopic or larger animals or plants), machinery, foods, the environment, and economics are the common areas of research. Much of the research is highly sophisticated and is involved in the use of the most modern equipment.

Employment involving inspection and grading is largely with the Federal or Provincial Departments of Agriculture. Such employees supervise the grading of meats, of seeds, check for disease and insects in products coming into Canada and check on the quality of foods. Another area involves land assessments (rural and urban) land appraisal, supervision of leases and permits on Crown owned land, etc.

Agri-business firms employ almost 20 percent of the graduates in a variety of employment involving the supervision and promotion of sales. The agricultural chemical companies selling fertilizers, insecticides and herbicides, the animal feed manufacturers, and the farm implement companies are the major employers of graduates in this type of employment. The opportunities for promotion to supervisory or managerial positions are good.

In the extension field the major employers are the Provincial Departments of Agriculture where graduates serve as agricultural representatives extending information to farmers and administering various programs and policies. Some large farm business organizations also employ extension specialists. Radio and T.V. and the farm press employ graduates to carry out their functions. Comprehensive high schools engage agricultural graduates to teach vocational agriculture.

Depending on the area of specialization graduates may be qualified to teach chemistry, biology or mathematics in high schools. After postgraduate work some graduates find employment in agricultural colleges.

The banks and farm credit corporations engage graduates to supervise and administer their loaning programs for farmers.

So the employment opportunities for graduates from Colleges of Agriculture are indeed many and varied. The salaries for graduates in agriculture compare very favourably with the salaries for a number of other professions.

Check the financial assistance available by picking up a copy of the various calendars at our office. Remember, the County of Parkland's Agricultural Committee is making four bursaries available for this purpose. Notices have appeared in previous issues of the paper.

Anybody in Alberta contemplating the application of herbicides to, or adjacent to, public water should have a permit. Permit forms are available from district agriculturists.

Red Cross Activities

During the School Year 1970-71 Room 20 of the Drayton Valley Elementary School had a Red Cross Youth Group. We were very glad that we joined this group because we had lots of fun. We had bake sales, toy sales, sock hops and many different things to keep us busy. We collected Canadian stamps and made four scrap books on Canada which were sent into Head-quarters. We also made six stuffed dolls and nine health kits which are given to fire victims. We collected coupons to help us get towels and face clothes for the health kits.

We weren't always sending things away though. Other Red Cross Youth Groups across the world sent us things too. We've had three scrapbooks of other countires, many films and even got a box of dolls, each doll dressed in its country's fashion.

Thirty-five dollars we earned was sent into Red Cross Headquarters to help less fortunate people.

We really would not have missed this chance to help our neighbours.

Our teacher, Mrs. Hammerlindl, helped us arrange this group and we are very grateful to her.

Preventing Livestock Losses From Poisonous Plants

Overgrazing is usually responsible for serious livestock losses from poisonous plants. With overgrazing the number and size of good forage plants decreases, while the number of less palatable and poisonous plants increases.

Pastures that are grazed before the forage species have made much growth in the spring will soon be overgrazed. The earliest growing plant species which include many of the poisonous plants will be the ones to carry the grazing load on native pastures that are grazed before they are ready for use.

There is also a danger of animals eating poisonous plants when they are moved from one pasture to another. The move disturbs their grazing habits and they will often eat plants which they would have refused in their home pasture simply because they are easily accessible.

Livestock losses from poisonous plants often increase during a drought. The lack of feed forces the animals to eat any plant that is available. Also, certain poisonous plants are more abundant in some years than others. In the latter case, the stock should be removed from infested areas during the growing season of the plants.

Pasture management is the only form of poisonous plant control that is widely practiced in Western Canada. However, water hemlock and tall larkspur have been eliminated on some ranches and community pastures by "grubbing" them out. This method is not practical with species like death camas because it has such a wide distribution. Cultivating and reseeding the area to grass or grass-legume mixtures has been successfully used for eradicating this plant species when the soil and climatic conditions are suitable. Although cultivating extensive range areas for summer pasture is often not practical, cultivating and reseeding specific areas for spring pasture is usually economical.

Only a limited amount of work has been done to date on controlling poisonous plants with herbicides. Because the native sod is a complex mixture of forages and weeds, and because many herbs and shrubs are valuable forage plants, spraying to control poisonour plants should be restricted to areas of the pasture that are known to be infested with these species. Chemical applications that are heavy enough to kill pasture weeds will affect the seed setting of native grasses and reduce the numbers of some palatable broadleafed plants.

Although poisonous plants are to be found in every ranching district in Alberta, few of them cause more than the occasional death in livestock except for western water hemlock, death camas, arrowgrass and tall larkspur.

Following is a brief description of these four species.

WESTERN WATER HEMLOCK:

It is a rather pale green branching smooth perennial of the carrot family that grows two to six feet high. The stems are stout, hollow and jointed and often have purplish spots. The flowers are small and white in compound umbrella-like heads. The plant blooms in June and July but the fruit does not mature until late in the season. It grows in marshy sloughs, meadows, wet draws and along stream banks in grassland and forested areas. Most of the poisonous oil is concentrated in the tuberous roots, but there is enough in the young shoots to cause trouble. Because of the pulling action of their grazing, cattle are more likely to be poisoned by water hemlock than other livestock. However, all types are susceptible.

DEATH CAMAS:

This plant is a member of the lily family. Growing eight to 16 inches tall, it is a slender perennial herb with smooth yellowish green, grass-like leaves. It has many creamy-yellow lily-like flowers. Death camas reaches grazing height early in the spring before most of the grasses. Its usual habitat is upland draws and depressions. All parts of the plant are poisonous, especially the bulbs. Hence, it is particularly dangerous when the soil is wet and the bulbs are easily pulled out by cattle. Seeds are formed during the latter part of June and early July, after which the plants quickly die back and disappear.

Although cattle are sometimes poisoned in the early spring before green grass is available, it is sheep that are most frequently poisoned.

ARROW-GRASS:

Arrow-grass is an erect rush-like, or grass-like perennial marsh herb that grows six to 30 inches tall. The flowers are small and greenish in color. They cluster along spike-like flower stalks. The seed pods are three-sided and about 1/4 of an inch long. This plant is common in salt marshes and alkaline sloughs. It grows in rushes, sedges and slough grasses. Both the green forage and the hay are toxic, but the hay gradually loses it toxicity. Cattle aremost often poisoned by arrow-grass, but sheep are also susceptible.

TALL LARKSPUR:

This plant is a member of the buttercup family. It is a tall stately perennial which grows from two to six feet tall. The leaves are toothed, deeply cleft in three to five main lobes. The flowers are pale blue to purplish and have a characteristic spur. It is common in the foot hills of the Rocky Mountains and grows in moist draws and on hillsides at higher elevations.

According to Dr. G.R. Whenham, head of the field services branch of the Alberta veterinary services division, symptoms of poisoning from the above plants usually include excessive salivation, nausea, staggering and convulsions. He says that medical treatment is ineffective in most cases because the antidote can rarely be administered in time.

Anyone who suspects that he may have any of these poisonous plants can get a definite identification by contacting his district agriculturist.

Dale Heighington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Heighington of Breton, Alberta, who graduated with a B.A. in Economics during spring convocation at the University of Alberta. He is at present employed in Edmonton but will return to U. of A. for the fall session in September.

"Even your interest earns interest with a Bonus Savings Account."

says John Hansen

"The great thing about a Royal Bank Bonus Savings Account is that it helps you make more money — faster. It pays high interest, and the interest is then added to your savings. So every time your interest is calculated, it's on your accumulated savings plus the accumulated interest you've already earned. So it really begins to pile up.

Another thing — a Bonus Savings Account is meant strictly for saving — so you can't write cheques. You can get your money out whenever you need to, but because you can't write cheques, there's not the same temptation to nibble away at your savings.

So if you've got something special to save for . . . a new home, a car, a trip . . . or you'd like to put away a 'nest egg', a Royal Bank Bonus Savings Account makes a lot of sense. Because it makes saving a lot easier. And a lot faster. Come on in and talk it over."

CANOE CAMP PROGRAM POSTPONEMENT REQUIRED

Sorry--no Canoe Camp Program until September. We have encountered a problem of no canoe rentals. It seems everyone is on canoe programs throughout the area at the same time as we have our program scheduled. Originally, we were getting canoes from a private supplier. Because of a turn over of the business our supplier was no longer available to us. We have scheduled one trip for the long weekend in September which would begin September 4th and complete on September 6th.

Depending on the number of people interested in canoe camping will influence our decision to acquire permanent equipment so that we do not run into this problem again.

For those people who have already registered, we apologize for the inconvenience. You may transfer your registration to September 4th or you may receive your registration refunds.

See you all in September for Canoe Camping.

Sentence for Stolen Tree

Every year an increasing number of trees are stolen from private and public lands in Alberta. However, it looks as though this offence is going to be taken more seriously in the future if the sentence handed down at the court in Fort Saskatchewan is anything to go by.

The case involved a man who was caught stealing a Colorado spruce from the provincial tree nursery at Oliver last Christmas. When his case came up before the Fort Saskatchewan magistrate's court this spring, the man pleaded guilty. The judge sentenced him to three months probation and ordered him to make restitution in the amount of $150 within the three-month probation period.

P.D. McCalla, head of the Alberta horticultural branch, commenting on the sentence, said that he was glad to see that the courts are putting a value on stolen trees. He pointed out that if any other private property of equal value were stolen, they would not hesitate to impose a suitable sentence, but that this has not always been the case in the past with trees. Many of the trees stolen each year are worth anywhere from $100 to $500 each, he says.

Mr. McCalla reports that although some trees are dug up for landscaping, most are taken at Christmas time. He feels that most of the people who go to the country to get their Christmas tree, do not set out to steal, but are looking for an excuse to give their children an outing. Probably they went with their fathers to cut down the family Christmas tree when they were young. Nevertheless, when it comes right down to it, they are stealing, and rural residents are becoming increasingly resentful about this annual raid on their evergreen trees. Not a few have said, "how would city people like it if we went and helped ourselves to one of their trees." Although the location is different, the principle is the same.

LET'S HAVE A BAR-B-Q!

The bar-b-q season progresses in the back-yard, at the cabin and on camping trips. Here are some timely tips for this ever-so-popular summer food fare:

If you are an old hand at barbecuing, you already know it is best to keep the menu simple and to plan it so that everyone can start eating at the same time. Start with a meat or main dish which can be cooked over the coals. With the meat, serve a vegetable or salad or both and bread. The dessert should be simple -- fresh fruits are a perfect choice. Plan the menu around finger foods so it is quick to prepare, easy to serve and fast to clean up after.

MEATS

Half the fun of barbecue cooking is in experiment ing with various kinds and cuts of meat. Experiment with fish, chicken, ham steaks, chops, lamb, kabobs as well as all the beef cuts. Outdoor cooking is a dry heat method, so choose the tender cuts of meat you would normally roast or broil. Less tender cuts of meat may be marinated overnight to improve tenderness and flavor.

KABOBS: Kabobs may look glamorous and elaborate but actually they are simple to make. The secret is in matching complementary color and flavor. Dip skewers in oil or rub with fat to keep food from sticking. Try meat cubes of beef, lamb, and pork mixed with vegetables like onions, green pepper slices, whole mushrooms, tomatoes, cucumbers, sweet pickles or fruits like pineapple and apple. Quick kabobs can be made with ham, luncheon meats, weiners and bologna.

FOIL

Foil can be your right-hand man at any barbeque. Wrap up anything from garlic bread, potatoes, vegetables to delicious fruit desserts.

SAFETY

Safety is a guest to invite at all times. Barbeque in an open or well ventilated area, read lighter fluid directions, keep matches in a covered container, especially use long handle utensils and asbestos gloves.
